

Biography

For the last eight years, Jaime has specialized in all types of commercial litigation, managing and trying a diverse array of cases involving commercial contracts, real estate, film finance, consumer class actions, insurance coverage, employment and labor disputes, intellectual property, government contract accounting, corporate governance, and corporate finance. A rarity in modern corporate litigation, Jaime has attended over 80 days of trial in eight years of practice, in addition of course to disposing of several matters by dismissal, summary judgment, and favorable settlement.

Jaime has also counseled clients on transactional matters in various commercial settings, including private corporate acquisitions, entertainment contracts, employment contracts, and international joint ventures.

Jaime received his J.D. from Harvard Law School in 1998, where he graduated cum laude. Jaime graduated from the University of Texas at Austin in 1995 with a Bachelor of Arts degree in Business Honors and Management, with additional concentrations in math and science. Jaime has the academic distinctions of having been admitted to college two years early at the age of sixteen and having graduated from the University of Texas with a perfect 4.0 grade point average, tied for first in a graduating class of approximately 10,000.
